DEW DROP.

The nearest saloon in town. The test of Liquors and finest Cigars. All kinds of drinks mixed to perfection—a la mode, a la Caesare, a la Fage, and a la publico. We are glad to see our friends, and have no objection to adding to the list. Call and see us.

CHIPS.

Skaters are going to the lake at a lively rate.

The Supreme Court is not overburdened with work.

The hearing of the recent cases of "pulls" on the liquor fraternity commenced yesterday.

Diphtheria at Sandy is decreasing, so we are informed. No new cases are reported. This is very gratifying news.

The Ogden Herald has "commenced" the publication of Senator Brown's speech on the Culm bill. You have to go to Ogden for genuine enterprise.

The dread of diphtheria is spreading in some of the lower settlements. It is so violent in the places where it prevails as to give foundation for apprehension.

Since lead has taken such a boost recently, low-grade ore should be in big demand, and many mines that are idle when lead is low could be worked to a handsome profit.

More silver ore is being shipped from Tintic mining district, Juab county, now than for several years. Eight car loads came into Lehi Junction Wednesday evening.

The regular train from Tintic to Lehi last evening brought in sixteen cars of ore—eight of iron and eight of silver. The production of iron in that district keeps up very well.

The O. D. Herald pronounces the election of Payne as Senator from Ohio "Democratic folly." In view of the fact that the Presidential campaign is almost upon us, this discouragement is inexcusable.

The people of the Twentieth ward have been very successful in conducting a fine series of primitive social parties. The next takes place in the schoolhouse on Friday evening, January 25th, at 7.30. This is the fourth of the series.

There was a largely increased attendance at the Opera House yesterday evening. These entertainments are not only gaining in patronage, but in popularity also; and the first class manner in which everything is conducted is of itself no slight attraction to those who love and can appreciate "a sweet concourse of harmonious sounds."

All common things, each day's events, that with the hour begin and end, Our pleasures and our discontents, Are rounds by which we may ascend.

—Longfellow.

Wines, Liquors and Cigars.

We are prepared to sell to families at the "Occidental" Pure California and Imported Wines at reduced prices. The best of Liquors and Cigars always on hand. You will become convinced by a trial.

Accident.

As the people were returning home from Conference, on Sunday evening, a man, whose name we did not learn, fell from the hind part of a wagon, as it was passing over the road near the mill of Peery & Mack. He received severe bruises and was carried in a house near by, in which condition he remained for several hours. He was taken to his home in Lynne, and is now getting on as well as could be expected.—O. D. Herald.

Missing Copies.

To complete files of THE HERALD, semi-weekly edition, we need copies of the following dates: September 23, and November 18, 1882; and May 12, and May 30, 1883. Parties sending any or all of the issues above named to this office will greatly oblige, and will also receive such compensation as they may deem reasonable and just.

THE EXAMINATION.

A Number of Experts Give Their Testimony.

At 1:30 p.m. yesterday afternoon, Drs. Anderson, Hamilton and H. J. Richards, were present at the City Hall, at the request and by the summons of Coroner Taylor, to be interrogated by the jurors and the father and friends of the deceased, W. G. Young, as to the expediency and advisability of exhuming the said Young, so that he could be examined as to the disease that caused his death.

An increased interest was manifested by the father, relatives and friends of the deceased, as to the opinions of the professional gentlemen present.

Dr. Clinton was questioned as to his views in regard to the disinterment of the deceased after having been dead and buried since December 25th or 26th, 1883, and much depended on the care used in exhuming and other precautions, if carried out as prescribed, for such emergencies in contagious diseases. The doctor was not certain as to the disease that caused the death of Young; had never seen a case of real spotted fever; was satisfied that smallpox might be caught otherwise than by direct contagion; if physicians could be present when the body was exhumed he thought there would not be much danger, if any.

Dr. Anderson was next interrogated as to the difference or similarity of small pox and spotted fever. Was doubtful as to the safety of exhuming a person who had died of small pox after he had been buried as long as deceased had been. He clearly described the symptoms and external evidences of small pox, and which is invariably accompanied with loss of appetite, and the greater amount of pimples or pustules that come out, the more fatal and dangerous. Was satisfied the disease could and had been conveyed for incredible distances in the air. Hardly any disinfectant known to the profession was a sure safeguard.

Dr. Hamilton could not form any certain opinion, from what had been adduced during his attendance, as to really what was the cause of Young's death. Was doubtful as to the advisability of exhuming the deceased, unless unusual care was exercised, if deceased died through small-pox.

Further questions were put to Doctors Anderson and Hamilton, by the jurors, relatives and friends of the deceased present, as to whether they could tell, if exhumed now, as to the actual disease that caused his death, spotted fever, scarlet fever or small-pox, to which the gentlemen gave satisfactory answers; and we think that the jury will decide that the body be exhumed.

Dr. Young expressed himself in and out of the hall as anxious that the deceased be exhumed and examined by two or three physicians, that all interested may be satisfied.

Coroner Taylor decided to turn the matter over to the board of quarantine, consisting of the probate judge, the county court and quarantine physician, Dr. Clinton. It is expected that they will decide early to day.

MISS FAITHFULL.

The Eminent Lady's Lecture Yesterday Evening.

The lower portion of the Theatre was filled yesterday evening by an intelligent and appreciative audience who had convened to hear the celebrated lecturer Miss Emily Faithfull on the subject of "Modern Shams." The stage was neatly and appropriately furnished; and when the lady appeared upon the scene she supplied all that was wanting to make the picture a very striking one. She was received with applause and at once entered upon the discussion of her subject. From first to last the lecture was delivered in a manner entirely free from the actor's arts, every sentence being couched in terms composed of simple words, yet so skillfully arranged and cleverly stated that, while the least experienced could understand, the most so could enjoy. We have heard of a countryman who once traveled several miles to hear Daniel Webster speak, and when the great orator had concluded his effort, the listener, turning to a friend, said—"It won't do; he's no orator; why, I could understand everything he said." So with Miss Faithfull; she says a great deal that is philosophical, argumentative, forcible, statesmanlike and entertaining; she uncovers a social deformity here and convicts a hitherto innocent practice there; pricks the bubble custom at all times, and makes so many shuttle-cocks of the superficial and artificial habits of man; she shows how the world is completely at the mercy of the almighty dollar, to the exclusion of every feeling of patriotism, justice and truth—how it subverts good principles, wrecks humane instincts and stamps out the best and purest instincts of the soul. And yet there is no striving for points, no efforts in the way of declamation—the lecturer's manner and her language being as simple as the nature of her position and the subject under discussion would permit.

The lecture lasted a little more than an hour, and at its close expressions of approval were numerous and sincere.

Supreme Court.

Proceedings in the Supreme Court on Wednesday, Jan. 23d, 1884, Chief Justice Hunter and Associate Justices Emerson and Twiss presiding; A. G. Campbell et al., respondents, vs. Thomas Taylor, appellant from Second District. On a motion made and submitted on the 18th inst., it is ordered that such motion, so far as it relates to the appeal from the order overruling motion for new trial, be sustained and granted; and further ordered that the statement on motion for new trial in the transcript may be considered and used as a statement on appeal from the judgment. From this part of the order, dismissing the appeal, as stated, Emerson, A. J., dissents.

The D. & R. G. Western Railway Co., respondent, vs. Cornelius A. Standif, appellant. After argument by S. H. Lewis for appellant, and R. Harkness for respondent, the case was taken under advisement.

The case of Provo City vs. George Shurtliff was argued.

A Bad Job.

The O. D. Herald of Tuesday says that a joyful Jehu, who jogs along jobbing, applied as the City Hall, inquiring for the city recorder. On being introduced to that august official Custos Rotulorum, he vented his grievance which was that he had delivered a load of coal to a Heathen Chinese, who, in his pagan perfidy, refused to pay the costs. The good-natured job-wagoner thereupon applied of our municipal chancellor, imbued with the idea that having taken out and paid for a job wagon license, he was entitled to the protection of the city in getting his remuneration for work performed under that license. We are sorry to say the agreement wasn't that way. The Herald man says the official "cussed-up," only he spells it wrong, and that his profanity went so far as to use so vile an epithet as "rotulorum." We hope he told the official that he was another.

A BAD BREAK

That a Couple of Eastern Drummers Made.

Last fall the following appeared in the Chicago Tribune, from which it was taken and sent away for future use. A Salt Lake gentleman in Chicago at the time investigated the matter, and facing them in the presence of their employers, asked them to retract their slanders upon the people of Utah. This they promised to do, but failed. Now, with a display of adamant cheek that is appalling even in a Chicago drummer, these gentlemen return to Salt Lake, with a view of selling goods to and making money from the people they have maligned. All THE HERALD has to say in the premises is that a merchant's money is his own, and this being a free country he can bestow his patronage where he pleases; but it strikes us that it is bad policy to help another to fight you. The gentlemen in question represent the houses of Henry W. King & Co., clothing, and W. E. Burbeck & Co., shirts. Here is what they say of the people who have dealt with them to the extent of thousands of dollars:

"A party of commercial gentlemen representing several of the largest wholesale houses of Chicago returned yesterday from Utah, where they have spent the summer and fall. Two of the party have made Salt Lake City their headquarters for four or five years past. Coming in contact with them at the Tremont House, a reporter for the Tribune made some inquiries with regard to the strength and prospects of the Mormon element."

Said one of the gentlemen: "We are willing to talk on condition that you will not use our names. You will readily understand why we make this request, as most of our customers are Mormons. My opinion," said he, as the others nodded assent, "is that polygamy has a firmer hold upon the community than ever. Marriages are taking place daily, and in great number, but the fact is concealed from the general public by the strict secrecy which characterizes the service. All Mormon marriages are now conducted, you understand, within the closed doors of the Endowment House, and none are admitted except such as know the password. A Gentile might occasionally slip in and see what was going on if it were not for the influences that are being brought to bear against the polygamists by the Government. The Mormons, feeling that they are being persecuted, have been gradually perfecting their system and strengthening their organization, until they are bound together as a unit. The idea that they are being persecuted only serves to band them together. The strong language used by the President in his message is only a quotation from the oft-repeated speeches of Gov. Murray, who fully comprehends the situation. The Mormons are the most fanatical people living, and they obey their church leaders as a slave would obey his master. The legislature which has been depended upon to correct the evils has a large Mormon majority, and the Gentile members are so spiritless and inefficient that they are controlled altogether by the majority or influenced by their constituents which are always strongly Mormon."

"Is all this apparent on the surface of things?" the reporter asked. "No," was the response. "You would have to live there a long time before you began to get at the bottom of things. The Mormon understands particularly well how to keep his mouth shut, and leaves all to the church. Now and then you can get him to talk about the principles of his faith, but what is actually going on is entirely another matter. The city of Salt Lake is overrun with Eastern people, who seem to be studying the question for some purpose or other. Kate Field and a number of journalists are engaged upon the subject. One young man has written column after column for a leading New York paper, but as yet I have not seen a line in print. I think the information is going to be printed throughout the country in several papers all at once for some reason or other, and the Mormons who know what is being done, are looking anxiously for the same thing. Mormonism looks horrid to the sight at close range, and it is a crying evil that ought to be rooted out."

SEEKING SULLIVAN.

A Former Salt Laker Wants to Tackle the Champion.

John Condie Orem, a clever, plucky pugilist who once conducted a blacksmith shop in Salt Lake, is after the "champion of the champions," and sends the following letter from Dillon to the Butte Inter-Mountain:

Seeing there is no man in the world dare face John L. Sullivan with the gloves, I make the following proposition: I will meet Mr. Sullivan in Butte on the same terms that governed his match with Tug Wilson in New York, viz: That he cannot knock me out in four three-minute rounds. Marquis of Queensbury rules; or I will fight him, in fact would prefer to fight him twenty rounds, according to the rules of the London prize ring. I to have thirty days' notice before the contest takes place. Mr. Sullivan told me he would be back some time in May, and I now submit this to give him ample time for consideration.

JOHN C. OREM,
Better known as Con Orem, ex-champion of American middle weight.

Con conducted himself in a very respectable, gentlemanly way in Salt Lake, and for that reason if no other, we hope he will not incapaacitate himself for continuing honorable business pursuits by getting within a mile of the boss bruiser.

PERSONAL.

Francis Cope, Esq., went to San Francisco on Wednesday, on railroad business, returning in the evening.

A brother of Joshua Midgley, of this city, who is a resident of Nephi, came up from that place on Wednesday for medical treatment.

Hon. W. W. Cluff returned from Coalville, yesterday morning. We are pleased to learn that the little child whose sickness called him home is somewhat improved.

A Representative Tanner.

Thomas McKay, Esq., of the firm of McKay & Chisholm, tanners, Benicia, California, spent a few days in our city, recuperating under the skilled care of "Dr." Wm. H. Rowe, and returned home yesterday, feeling first rate. Mr. McKay's firm has the largest tannery on the Pacific Coast, and the leather it produces is unexcelled in quality. Z. C. M. I. is one of McKay & Chisholm's best customers, having purchased over $50,000 worth of leather from them last year. Mr. McKay, in addition to being one of the largest tanners in California, has a large head, set on a large body encasing a decidedly large heart. If all the Scottish Highlanders possessed physique and brain equal to Mr. McKay's we could readily comprehend why they are renowned for never having been conquered in war or over-reached in business.

A Cold Bath.

Wednesday afternoon as a man, with a team and empty wagon, was crossing the bridge over the canal running through the Sixth Ward, one of his horses suddenly shied and jumped into the water below, dragging the entire outfit with him. There was but little water in the canal at the time, but considering the fact that horses, driver and wagon fell a distance of five feet, and consequently became very much mixed up, it is a matter for congratulation that the accident was not far more serious than it proved to be. As it was the harness was about all that suffered any damage, and save a sudden cold bath, and considerable of a fright, the man was none the worse for his tumble. He was helped out by R. C. McEwan and went on his way rejoicing that the misfortune was not more serious.

THE REEF.

Dull Times Among the Silver Sandstones.

It would be difficult to imagine a more dull and lifeless mining camp than Silver Reef at the present time. The Barber and Christy mills are both lying idle; the result is a great many workmen are out of employment. The officers of the Christy state that at the mill will resume work shortly, but the general belief is that it will not start up again until it can start with reduced wages. The Stomont alone continues running, keeping alive the faint spark of life that remains in the old camp.

A great many people are leaving the Reef now, and more intend leaving in the spring. Some are going to Park City, others to the Coast d'Alene. Gold fever is very prevalent amongst the miners and "Cruel d'Alene" is on every tongue.

The mines west of St. George are causing considerable talk, but little of anything else. The three principal properties are: A silver mine owned by Messrs. Woolley, Lund & Judd; a lead mine owned by Col. W. B. Pace & Co.; and a copper mine owned by Messrs. Brigham, Jarvis & Co. As to the richness of these mines there is no question; but there is one great drawback to their speedy development, and that is a lack of capital on the part of the owners; especially in the case with the owners of the lead and copper mines. Considerable outlay will be required in erecting smelting works for the reduction of the ores, and this the owners, unassisted, are not prepared to meet. If therefore, these mines are to be developed at present, it will be by the assistance of outside capital. If their intrinsic value were generally known, we think the necessary capital would be forthcoming; but unless there is some effort made by the owners to bring them into prominence, it is likely they will remain in their present condition for some time to come.

The district schools of St. George are flourishing this winter. There are four ward or primary schools, each with quite a large attendance; beside one central or high school, which is under the able tuition of Professor Whitelock. The central school is very full, and is conducted in a highly satisfactory manner. Anyone unacquainted with the climate of Dixie would be surprised to learn that we have had no snow here yet this winter. This fact bodes no good to the farmer, whose crops depend on the water supply. Of course it is very pleasant to have so much fine weather during the winter, but our population is composed largely of farmers, and they prefer large crops to even pleasant weather.

Respectfully,

J. T. W.

Police Court.

Wm. Appleby, charged with assault and battery; case not heard yet.

Barney Harvey was charged with doing likewise, and he came up like a little man and paid $50.

Merrill & Winegar, charged with doing the same business, on the day that they shouldn't, by their attorney demurred, which was heard, and his honor will decide as to the well groundedness of the said demurrer and its legality to-day at 11 a.m.

Peter Tourney, for doing the same thing on Sunday; case not heard yet.

Don Tufts, for transgressing likewise, was fined $50.

Madame Minnie Moore, charged with keeping an unchristianlike house, will probably be heard to-day as to her guilt or innocence.

Fatal Mining Accident.

We learn from Mr. John Boyder, who has recently returned from Coalville, that a man named James Allgood was killed while taking out the supports in the old Springs mine, abandoned. A boy assisting Mr. Allgood had been but a few moments before called out of the mine by his father, who considered it unsafe to labor where they were then at work. The body was not recovered until the following morning about 3 o'clock. The accident occurred Thursday, January 17th.

No Diphtheria.

LEHI CITY, January 24.

Editors Herald: Please contradict the statement made in yesterday's daily, that diphtheria was raging in Lehi. I am happy to say that we have not had a single case of it for a year or two. Pleasant Grove and American Fork are very badly afflicted with it, with whom I deeply sympathize.

Yours truly,

T. R. CUTLER.
